RE: N01175283

To whom this may concern,

Scott Swetland came to observe with me over his winter break last year. I work in an Outpatient Physical Therapy clinic. Here in Bradenton, we treat a number of geriatric orthopedic diagnoses. The patients that I see are mostly active retirees that want to return to a full level of function. Scott was both professional and personable in his interactions with patients. He took the initiative to speak with patients, learning about their diagnoses and getting to know them. He was actively involved, discussing with me the patient's treatments and the rationale behind them. He was timely and dressed in a professional manner. He seems to be comfortable with working with all patients and giving them appropriate motivation. He seems to have the knowledge, dedication, and desire to excel in Physical Therapy school.

I think Scott will benefit from the rigorousness of your program and emphasis placed upon professionalism. Scott has developed the discipline to studying and understands the importance of putting time into school work. It will be his main focus in life while he attends school. Once he starts working, he will be an enthusiastic practitioner and great at encouraging and motivating patients. He will easily connect with patients, creating a good rapport.

Sincerely,

Kristina Wilson, DPT #2527
